SPYN MAKES HEADS SPIN WITH NEW PRODUCT LINE AT NAMM SHOW 2009

SPYN, a Miami-based manufacturer and distributor of pro audio equipment, garnered plenty of attention at the 2009 NAMM Show with two of its newest, hot products: the VS series of amplifiers and the EX-825 effects processor.

The EX-825 enhances MP3 audio and bass by producing a richer and fuller sound. The VS series of amplifiers features digital displays with extensive built-in safety and protection features.

“We offer top quality for reasonable prices,” says company President Victor Levis, as domestic dealers, contractors, distributors and international customers crowded around SPYN’s booth to examine the company’s products.

SPYN was one of more than 1,500 exhibitors who attended the trade-only event whose purpose is to strengthen the global music products industry. In its 107th year, the NAMM Show is the longest-running trade show in the U.S.

“These are tough economic times,” says Levis, “If dealers are selling fewer items, they need to make a larger profit on each sale. Because our products are well priced, we can offer dealers greater profit margins than the name brands. Since the consumer also pays less for our merchandise, everybody wins: consumer and dealer.”

In the industry, SPYN is recognized for outstanding quality that is matched by excellent service. The 17-year-old company distributes its amplifiers, sound-effect processors and flight cases throughout Central America, the Caribbean, as well as Venezuela, Colombia and Peru.

“For the last two years, we’ve been making a big push to increase our name recognition in the domestic US market,” said Levis.

And it’s paying off. Eager to increase its customer base, the company gave away DJ-1350 amps to customers who placed minimum orders at the NAMM Show.
